SPC 120 - Public Speaking

Persuasive Speech 2 – Proposition of Policy

A persuasive speech is a speech designed to change or reinforce your audience's beliefs, attitudes, and/or actions. For this speech, you are seeking to change or reinforce audience actions. Your speech should address a controversial topic and be designed to persuade your audience on a question of policy. A policy is a course of action to be taken by a specific entity to solve or alleviate a problem. Depending on your topic, you will need to spend more, or less, time making a case for the existence, harm and/or significance of the problem before addressing the action you are seeking. In this speech at least part of the action sought can be support of the organization you have selected.

You are expected to advocate in a vigorous and well-informed manner. After all policy speeches have been presented, the class will be polled to determine the organization selected to receive the class's donation.

This assignment will require considerable research and skillful use of the methods of persuasion discussed in class and in the textbook. Audience analysis will be particularly important. Use the results of your audience survey to help you adapt your persuasive message to your specific audience.

Please review the course syllabus for the policy on Originality and plagiarism.

Requirements:

Time: 5 - 7 minutes

Delivery: Extemporaneous. Speaker's notes may be collected.

Survey: Each student will prepare an audience analysis questionnaire to help you identify and adapt to your audience. Refer to chapter 6 in preparing your survey.

Bibliography: Minimum of five (5) separate research sources, only one of which may be a specialized dictionary or encyclopedia. Sources should be cited in outline as well as orally in your speech. Use MLA format to cite sources in the outline.

A FORMAL LETTER

LAYOUT

Addressee:

- YOUR ADDRESS should be on the RIGHT HAND SIDE.
• THEIR ADDRESS should be situated on the LEFT HAND SIDE and start BEFORE YOUR ADDRESS.

Date:

- This can be located in either the top (on the right hand side of the page, BEFORE THE ADDRESS), and above your opening greeting. This should be written in FULL, for example, Monday 19th June 2018.

Writing format:

- You should ALWAYS use paragraphs, just because you are not writing an analytical essay. It will result a good sense of structure regardless of whether it is a formal letter or a more casual piece of writing to a close friend. Allocate a paragraph for each of your three topics or points within the letter.
• There should be a clear sentence and paragraph structure. If you can, try and start with a P.E.E. but make it more brief - it is unlikely you will be writing a formal letter to one of their friends for this task and therefore, the likelihood of you having to support your topic of writing is high, so order to fully engage your reader, you must make your points, evidence and explanations precise, valid and coherent.
• Use appropriate punctuation. Try not to include too many commas and full stops and show that you understand how to use more dynamic punctuation, such as a semi colon. Do not however, avoid full stops and commas at all cost - the examiner won't be able to breathe when it comes to marking and you'll most definitely lose vital marks!
• When ending the letter, you should MAKE A GAP between your GROUND STATEMENT (YOUR MAIN POINT) and the final paragraph. Make sure you follow with either a signature of the individual you are speaking on behalf of OR their full name followed by the position in which they are currently at (i.e. Chief Executive).

LANGUAGE

- Start your letter with 'Dear Mr/Miss/Ms/Mrs + name'. If you DO NOT KNOW their NAME, address it to 'Sir' or 'Madam'.
• Confused language should NOT be included within a formal piece of text.
• Conditions should be avoided where possible. For instance, the inclusion of 'don't' instead of 'do not' and 'can't' instead of 'cannot'.
• Do not go off on tangents, especially if it is a letter specifically requesting something, such as a bank loan, etc. Be CONCISE! Remember the context of the letter. What justified their Capex and R&D activities in IT?

Question 1c-Unlocking the Question

I am able to identify WHO I am writing AS

If you start writing without knowing who you are meant to be then you will run into major problems! The mark scheme says that you need to create a 'voice' for your character so you need to sound like it really is them speaking - that will be hard if you don't know who you are!

Here is the first line of a question

1 Imagine you are Brian Keenan writing a letter home about his experience of being held captive.

Step 1 - Work out who you are from the question. Here, you are Brian Keenan.

Step 2 - Read the passage and work out what kind of person Brian Keenan is. There are some clues in the passage. Here is the first paragraph - look at the clues that I have highlighted.

At the head of the mattress I kept my briefcase with my school textbooks. Behind the briefcase I hid my shoes. I was nervous about that I would lose those shoes. If I did, I felt it would be a sure sign that I would never leave that cell.

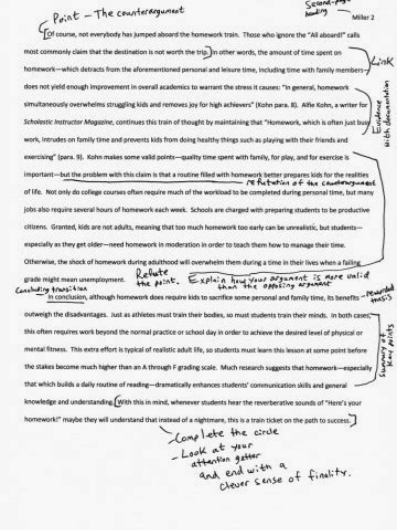

- ✓ Brian Keenan sounds like he is someone who likes to be ordered - he keeps his things in the same place. Maybe this is so he can have some control over a situation he isn't in control of!
✓ Brian Keenan sounds clever because he hid his shoes deliberately so no one would take them. He's also suspicious of people around him.
✓ Brian Keenan sounds scared about losing hope - he was afraid he would lose the shoes which would mean he could never leave his prison.

Step 3 - Turn that information into some sentences that really sound like Brian Keenan.

eg "Mother, there were times when I thought I was just hanging on to any hope I could find. Do you know that I hid my shoes in case anyone should take them? I could feel myself becoming suspicious that my captors would steal them. For me mother, those shoes symbolised my hope of getting out of that prison. I had to control what I could control - even putting my briefcase and school books in the same place behind my bed, every day!"

TOP TIP: If you work through the passage like this, you will pick up valuable marks.

WARNING: DON'T just jump into the passage - PLAN your answer. Highlight the passage and annotate it with your ideas.

Using informal language to connect with the audience, using high diction will not create any effect in the audience's mind. Pro-Ed, 1999) "By providing non-threatening but challenging writing experiences for [students], we are enabling them to develop confidence in the writing skills they already have as they demonstrate - for themselves and for a teacher - the syntactic fluency they have developed over a lifetime of using and listening to their native language. We warmly welcome you to Camp Idube! Thank you! Do you have trouble understanding these concepts? It is also important to know the different bird calls to know if they are warning calls against predators or you. Use of emotional language, rhetorical questions, comparison are advisable. You may wonder why it evokes a sense of unity rather than division. It is often used to convince the public to support an idea, or to explain/describe an interesting topic or event. This helps your speech to be consistent and not mixed up. - To make students aware of the effects of stylistic choices. Interns are also required to bring liquid drinks to Camp Bush. Features of Voice Writing You will be given a reading booklet insert containing the step for writing the speech. - Try the combination of sentences and copiousness of Erasmus. Now, convert the selected pass points into your words. There is good reason to think that this inference may be misleading" ...[A] Although syntactic fluency may be a necessary part of what we mean by writing ability, it cannot be the only or even the most important part of that ability. Being a trainee guide you should remain calm at all times.. Contrast it with the flu. Be sure to bring out a strong sense of voice and use simple but powerful words. You should choose relevant points from the passage after having a thorough understanding of the question. The message may be unclear, misunderstood or confused. What makes a good safari guide are the little things that are often overlooked. You may need to address the audience sometimes during the speech; in such situations, it is best to use the term us. Read the passage carefully. Although skilled writers may be syntactically fluent, they must be able to apply that fluency using different genres in different situations; different genres and different situations, even different purposes, require different kinds of language. Many non-narrative texts follow specific language and structure conventions. Pragmatic fluency refers to both knowing and demonstrating what you want to say within and in response to a variety of situational constraints. It unites the crowd and creates a sense of unity in them. Hermagoras Press, 1995) "We might reasonably infer that good writers, experienced writers, mature writers have mastered the syntax of their language and have at their disposal a wide repertoire of syntactic forms, especially those we associate with clauses, longer, which we can recognize simply by their length, or denser sentences, which we can measure using the unit T, an independent clause and all its subordinations. The in-depth knowledge of trees, birds and insects will help you. Would you like assistance from an expert in the field? Finally, there are dinner evenings with delicious food and service with socializing under the stars. by Christina and Joe Law. But they're actually showing they're already mastered the basic grammatical structures they need Result Welcome to Idube Camp! I hope you are excited about the new experience of the field. It also ensures that the structure of the phrase is perfect. The itinerary was free of other travelers; The only sign of human dwelling was a couple of small houses isolated.â € You can see how I changed the structure of the sentence and the words of the highlighted section without altering the meaning of the paragraph? We are at a distance click. Here in Vidyalai we help your child to reach the level to which he aspires. There are also some challenges that guides should overtake first of all, bringing cans when it happens to let go of the wheelbarrow. Syntactic fluidity (also known as syntactic or syntactic maturity) refers to the ability to effectively manipulate a variety of phrase structures. Secondly, there will be guided walks where the safari guides will explain the surroundings and will tell you what you missed during the walk. The place is decorated with lanterns. Have phrases of clear argument with separate ideas for each paragraph. And the writing we ask them to do is allowing them to develop more fluently. There are many interesting things to explore, one of these is the safari unit where you can see dangerous animals in their habitat and how they interact with each other. When a speech is held, it is a fundamental consideration .You should also be aware of taking shortcuts and change the paths when necessary. The adjacent question will be provided in the questionnaire brochure. Here's how it is done; it is not easy to start, but with the practice, it will become more Easy. You should always be the ones to lead the group. This appears mainly in Paper 1 of your English Language and Literature question paper. However, the question that immediately comes to mind is this: Are longer, thicker sentences always better, more mature? Since you're the person who's giving the speech in front of an audience. There were no other travelers on the mountain, except a few lonely dwellings.ÀeÀÀ "It was four hours, and all we could see were barren mountains. - Imitation is not just for sincere flattery. In composition, fluency is a general term for the clear, fluent and seemingly effortless use of language in writing or language. We could only see barren mountains despite walking for four hours. Keep sentences short so as to deviate from the topic. Request your first lesson now. Experienced writers may have an excellent understanding of the language, but they still need to know what they are talking about, and they still need to know how to apply what they know in any case. Phonological fluency refers to the ease of producing long and complex strings of sounds within significant and complex linguistic units" (David Allen Shapiro, Stuttering Intervention. As seen in the example above, Churchill repeatedly uses our way of inspiring listeners. You're responsible for training safari guides. Can we necessarily deduce that a writer who uses a longer or more complex syntax is anyway a better or more mature writer than one who is not? If we take a closer look at the highlighted text we see repetitions of sentences and a rhyming pattern skillfully incorporated into the speech. The proof of the syntactic fluency of writers can only be if they adapt their repertoire of structures and techniques to the needs of a particular purpose in a particular context.
